

ABSTRACT

A pressure relief system for attachment to pressurized vessels, containers, reactors, boilers, etc., utilizing fluid(s) as a working part of the pressure relief system in which a vertical or diagonal column of fluid in a tube or container acts as a pressure relief valve by containing the fluid below it, and the fluid in areas connected to the fluid below it, via gravity and/or inertia.

RECEIVED

JUN 10 2002

TECHNOLOGY CENTER R3700